

Aloha United Way

Frequently Asked Questions:

What is 211 and who operates it?

211 is a free information and referral service provided by Aloha United Way. 211 makes it easy to access thousands of community resources.

Who calls 211?

It's for everyone. Most people call seeking information or assistance for themselves or a family member. Professionals also use the service to help patients and clients. Students, reporters and researchers call for information, too.

Can I get this information on the Internet?

Yes! You can search our 211 database online at www.auw.org/211

What types of services can 211 help me find?

- Alzheimer's resources
- Basic needs (food, shelter, clothing)
- Childcare services
- Children's health insurance
- Consumer complaints
- Crisis intervention
- Disability services
- Donation information
- Domestic violence programs
- Elderly care services
- Family counseling
- Financial assistance
- Government programs
- Health care
- Legal assistance
- Parenting programs
- Substance abuse treatment
- Suicide prevention
- Transportation
- Veterans' services
- Volunteer information
- ...And much more!

Aloha United Way

community services
suicide
men's health insurance
elderly services
special needs
government info
job training
legal aid
financial assistance
childcare
volunteer
substance abuse
family support
tax preparation
donations
health care
education
disability services
domestic violence

Aloha United Way

To find or give help.
It's free. It's confidential. It's 24/7.

health care
parenting programs
mental health
tax preparation
consumer complaints
clothing
family support
alcoholism
financial assistance
crisis intervention
hunger
volunteer
elderly services
special needs
children's health insurance
childcare
education
domestic violence
Alzheimer's resources
community services

211 is a community service provided by Aloha United Way.
Call 211 or visit us online at www.auw.org/211

